Reading Can Feed Our Mind

Reading is very important to us all. Just as we eat when we are hungry, we feed our mind by reading. Reading has been a most helpful tool used by us since childhood. There are so many books which can answer all our questions and solve our puzzles. The interesting part of the book is kept in our mind as a seed which will be used by us in the future to develop new ideas. The more books we read, the more our mind will open up. Reading can also make us knowledgeable and creative. What's more, it improves our speech skills and enlarges our vocabulary.

In a word, we should give food to our thoughts by reading a lot.

Dear Justin,

I got the information from my school that you will come to our school as an exchange student. I also know that you are looking for a family you can live with.

There are three members in my family. My father is a doctor and my mother is a teacher who is teaching Chinese. We are living in an apartment with three bedrooms and two bathrooms. You can live in one room, which is very convenient for you. My home is quite close to the school and it takes only 10 minutes by walking. You can surf the Internet anytime you like. Besides, we can go to school together. My mother can teach more Chinese at home if you like. I am sure you will enjoy your stay with us.

If there is anything else you need, please let me know.

I am looking forward to your coming!

Dear Sir or Madam,

I have seen your advertisement for a part-time receptionist at your school and I would like to apply for the position.

I am an 18-year-old Chinese student. My mother tongue is Chinese, but I speak French and English fluently. I should point out that I once worked as a part-time receptionist in a hotel, so I am used to dealing with members of the public. I enjoy contact with people, and I am told I have a good telephone manner. I feel I have the relevant qualities and skills you require, so I would be grateful if you would consider my application.

I am available for interview at any time, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours,
Li Ming

Dear Mike,

I'm delighted to share with you something about the summer camp I took part in last July.

We, five teachers and thirty students, spent 5 days from July 16th to July 21st at the Red Star Campsite, where we did lots of cool things.

On our arrival, the teachers told us the rules and divided us into five groups. Then, we learnt to make a camp fire by rubbing two wooden sticks together. The next day, we had a thrilling boat race and a big picnic. In the evening, we were taught to figure out the directions by observing the stars. More interestingly, we had a three-day hike in the woods for the rest of the camp.

What an enjoyable and unforgettable experience! I hope you can join us next time.

Best regards,

Yours,
Li Hua

When in China, Do as the Chinese Do!

Meals in China are quite different in some ways from meals in the West. In China, lunch is usually served around 12 o'clock. People usually eat most because they think they need more energy for the rest of the day. As for dinner, Chinese people eat it much earlier than people in the West. And they are expected to eat together with their family. Chopsticks are used to eat most food. Generally, there will be lots of different dishes for dinner, not just three courses. Besides, Chinese people like to talk about food, so it's a good topic during a meal. The golden rule is: when you're in China, watch the Chinese and do as they do!

Dear Sir/Madam,

I'm writing to you to express my experience in the reading room.

I visited the reading room on Sunday, 13 March to do my homework, but I experienced some problems. Many other students have the same experiences. There are too many old books, some of which have missing or damaged pages. Magazines and newspapers are not in their places. What's worse, none of the computers are connected to the Internet, making it hard for us to look up the information we need badly. Besides it is a little noisy in the room and the lighting is poor. The air is not so fresh as well.

It is important for us students to learn independently and creatively, so our school really needs to buy more new books, keep the reading room tidy and quiet, as well as improve the environment there.

Looking forward to that day!

Yours,
Li Hua
